Your gifts: Victories for babies like Josephine

Josephine Schwartz weighed less than 2 pounds when she was born four months early.

Her mother Cari was airlifted to Indianapolis from Bloomington when premature labor started.

Local doctors knew the Riley Maternity and Newborn Health team was best-equipped to give a baby as tiny as Josephine a fighting chance.

Josephine spent 120 days in the Riley Newborn Intensive Care Unit (NICU).

She had a lot to overcome including a collapsed lung, respiratory virus, four blood transfusions and countless blood draws. And overcome she did.

Today Josephine is home with her adoring brothers and parents growing stronger and healthier as she continues check-ups with Riley specialists.

"The doctors, nurses and respiratory therapists at Riley Hospital saved our daughter's life," says Cari Schwartz. "Riley Hospital's staff not only saved her, but helped her grow into a thriving, healthy baby."
